

The other columns

When

Request time. The feed is newest-first.

Developer

Who sent it, and which tool. A dash with a tooltip means the request arrived with a device token issued before attribution was in place — the developer should reconnect the tool in the Endpoint Suite, after which their name appears.

Model

The model actually used, which is not always the one the developer thinks they selected.

Mode

Subscription or API key — whose money paid. See Connection modes.

Outcome

OK, Blocked, or an upstream error passed through from the provider. Blocked rows are tinted and carry a red rail down the left edge, so a scan of the screen finds them without reading.

Tokens and duration

Size and latency. Useful for spotting the agent loop that is quietly burning ten times more tokens than anybody expected.

Opening a row

Clicking a row opens its captured conversation — but only when there is one. That requires prompt capture to have been on at the time. Without it, the row is the record.
